BEN WATTS

► People used to laugh when you said East Coast Surf, but they're not laughing anymore. Not since a new generation of surfers—some local, some N.Y.C. exiles—started heading to Montauk, Long Island, and taking the swell seriously. They call the town The End, and it's a full-fledged scene worth ripping into

PRESERVATION HALL WHERE JAZZ LIVES ON

Hidden down an unassuming street in the French Quarter, Preservation Hall is easy to miss. Until the music starts, that is. Because as soon as we heard the drums pick up and horns kick in, we knew we'd found something special. Dedicated to protecting, preserving, and perpetuating New Orleans' rich heritage as the birthplace of jazz, it functions as both social club and performance space for many of the city's most legendary musicians. And if you're lucky enough to catch an impromptu "Second Line," well, it doesn't get much better than that.
