Liv in the MOMENT

This season's chicest '60s-inspired pieces could have been fashioned with LIV TYLER in mind. The actress talks to TOM SHONE about her independent life choices, the importance of good manners and why she is really an old-fashioned girl at heart

look out, world

Plaid is the pattern now. Love this fitted jacket and pleated skirt layered over leggings—very downtown. (Note Kikuchi's equally downtown ankle boots. So cool.) Jacket, skirt, boots with garters, Chanel. See Glamour Shopper for more information.

street chic

Does actress Rinko Kikuchi not have the slimmest style you've ever seen? Channel her look in tailored urban pieces—huge this fall.

you talking to me?

Kikuchi clearly has attitude. What makes her suit just as modern as spicy red and the awesome cropped jacket, pleated pants shape. Wear it to work, out at night, everywhere. You run this town. Jacket, pants, Thakoon Addition shirt, Agnès B. heels, Robert Clergerie. See Glamour Shopper for more information.

The Familiar Face

JOHN C. REILLY, actor.

Twenty-eight films (and he's good in every one),
and Oscar nomination too plays.

Picked from character-actor obscurity by Paul Thomas Anderson for his feature debut, Hard Eight (1997),
and his follow-up epic of pain, Boogie Nights (1997), John C. Reilly became even less of a Hollywood secret in 2003, with roles in four movies that couldn't be more different from one another: The Good Girl, Chicago, Gangs of New York, and The Hours. Reilly brings a touch of sweetness and humor to the loneliest he plays so well, which is what makes the denouement of The Good Girl something more than merely pathetic. And as he showed in Chicago, with his big number, "Mr. Celophane," he sings
and dances a little too.

Tinted Love

In an endless variety of shapes, sizes, and colors, there's a pair of shades for everyone. Photographed by Sebastian Kim.

I love that in the forties you only saw women in glamorous mode," says actress Juno Temple, who in Mia Mia's cobalt-tinted cat-eye sunglasses recalls the sultry allure of a young Katharine Hepburn. The film noir frames are just one example of spring character-laden accessories from Sofia McArthur's cartoonish round shades to Proenza Schouler's Balthus-style rounders. "Different shapes completely change your look," says the British-born, Los Angeles-based actress, who counts seventeen pairs of sunglasses in her collection, including Wayfarers, aviators, and John Lennon specs, with green, pink, and metallic lenses so she can "see the world in different colors." Embracing alternative viewpoints is, after all, paramount to the performer's success. Since her breakthrough appearances in Knave and Sum of All Parts, Temple, now 22, has worked almost nonstop and awaits four film releases this year, including Jack and Diane (out in June), as Riley Keough's girlfriend, and The Dark Knight Rises, the final installment in the Batman trilogy (July), in which she's cast alongside Christian Bale, but on that subject her lips are sealed. "I've played some extraordinary characters. I love a challenge," is all the daughter of film director Julian Temple and producer Amanda Temple will hint at. The midcentury also plans to learn guitar and put out a lingerie collection "that makes all shapes and sizes feel good." Meanwhile, at a petite five-foot-one, Temple wears Mia Mia's ladylike frocks to maximum red-carpet effect. "You don't have to be a ten-foot hunk to look good," she says. "And that's empowering." —TENNIS OWENS

INTO THE BLUE
Actress Juno Temple, aboard The Queen Mary (Long Beach, California), wearing Mia Mia hair sunglasses, $390, for boutiques. The limited dress, $90, themlimited.com.
